NEW HAVEN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

Dear Educators:

It is with excitement and joy that I welcome our new teachers to New Haven Public Schools. Teaching is one of the most rewarding and gratifying careers that a person can choose. I am elated that you have joined our #OneNewHaven Team. We believe that all children can learn, achieve, and rise to a bright future. As a community, the District's purpose is to provide an excellent education that extends beyond graduation and prepares our students to be the next generation of leaders, innovators, and problem solvers.

The New Teacher Resource Guide is designed to ensure that teachers are equipped with the resources to prepare, plan, and provide welcoming environments, high-quality instruction, and socio-emotional supports for all of our students. I would like to commend the New Teacher Resource Guide Committee for preparing this document.

The possibilities are endless for our students. I thank you for sharing your gifts and talents with our learners everyday. Our families are appreciative of all of your efforts. I look forward to visiting your classrooms throughout the year. I am honored to serve with you!

Your Superintendent,

Key Indicators of Success

NEW HAVEN PUBLIC SCHOOLS

The following seven key indicators of success will be used to monitor New Haven Public Schools' progress and implementation of the District Continuous Improvement Plan. These indicators are aligned to the Every Student Success Act of 2015 and the Connecticut Department of Education Next Generation Accountability System.

By June of each year, New Haven Public Schools will meet or exceed the targets for all seven measures, listed in each column 2018-2019 through 2020-2021 (for three consecutive years).

First Day of School

Make your first day a great one. These are some tips and strategies to help you start off well.

- Arrive early
- Dress for success
- Lock your personal items,
- Have all learning materials ready
- Basic materials and learning tools
- Know the bell Schedule
- Have a pre-arranged seating chart
- Greet students with a smile
- Start with a first day ice-breaker or get-acquainted activity
- Have students prepare their own name tags
- Teach class expectations and procedures.

Start student learning right away. While it makes sense to devote time to routines and procedures, it is important to begin instruction as well. Lesson plan carefully and purposefully for the first week. Plan for more lessons and activities than you think you will need.

Have lunch with colleagues. As tempting as it might be to re-group alone in your classroom, joining your faculty in the lunchroom can give you a much-needed break and an opportunity to share collegial ideas and insights.

Classroom Set-Up

An effective physical arrangement of your classroom can create a welcoming environment for your students. The layout of your classroom will also affect the ease of movement around the room, so desk groupings are a primary consideration. Before you start arranging furniture, sit somewhere in the room and get the feel of the space. Visualize where tables and desks should be placed, where the best placement is for your desk, how students will enter, where to place student-accessible materials, and where the story rug or presentation space should be. The physical layout of your classroom will also affect the ease of your movement around the room, so consider the walking space between desks, and proximity to doors, supplies and group work areas.

Whiteboard and Projector Screen:

All your students must be able to see the board and the screen easily. Before settling on one desk arrangement, try sitting in different students' seats to find out if they will be able to see the board.

PROJECTION TECHNOLOGY:

If you regularly use an LCD projector and/or document reader, position your cart or stand in a stable, central spot, and then design your student seating arrangement around it. Once you have settled on one arrangement, tape all cords down securely. Make sure to include space for your laptop and speakers, as well as a handy spot for necessary items such as remote clickers, pointers, clipboards and pens.

SUPPLIES AND MATERIALS:

Designate places where students can directly access necessary supplemental materials and supplies. Try to keep pencil sharpeners and trash cans away from desks, to prevent noisy disruptions. Think ahead about what papers will be coming and going throughout the day. Where will students turn in materials, and where students access materials? Use bins or folders and designate space for these in and out boxes.

TEACHER'S DESK:

It is generally a good idea to position your work desk in a less trafficked location. In secondary schools, teachers typically place their desk in the front of the classroom. While being in the front of the class affords the teacher a good view of the students' faces, placing the desk at the back of the classroom has advantages, including allowing the teacher to conference more privately with individual students while overseeing the class. In any event, make sure your desk has a place where you can lock up your phone and other valuables.

WHITE BOARD, BULLETIN BOARD AND WALL SPACE STRATEGIC PLACEMENT:

Designate space to post the daily agenda, assignments and announcements. Establish one location for writing or posting these items, and make sure they are visible to all students, as well as easily accessible for you. You can also designate one space for school information and announcements, including bell schedules, schoolwide learning goals and behavior plans, and upcoming events.

Examples of Seating Arrangements

Predominantly
Learner-Centered Instruction

Small Group Format

Suitable for All Class Sizes

Pros

- Encourages interaction of all students
- Creates a more personal and safe environment for students to convey their ideas
- Promotes cooperation and teamwork
- Develops reflection, problem solving, and communication skills
- Flexibility to strategically form groups
- Suitable for small spaces

Cons

- Increased noise level, distractions, and off-task behavior
- Decreased productivity
- Less individual accountability (ex. strongest student may do the bulk of the work)
- Harder to assess students' abilities and level of understanding

Clusters

Teacher- and Learner-Centered
Instruction

Large Group Format

Best for Small- and
Medium-Sized Classes

Pros

- Easier to interact with entire class
- Encourages discussion and participation
- Fosters connection between students and educator
- Large area for presentations and demonstrations

Cons

- Not suitable for work in small groups
- May overwhelm shy students
- May be difficult to control behavior
- Larger classes may have difficulty engaging in discussions

Horseshoe/U-Shape

Teacher-Centered Instruction

Independent Learning Format

Suitable for All Class Sizes

Pros

- Encourages individual work and productivity
- Minimizes disruptions and cheating
- Effective for demonstrations, test taking, and presentations
- Easier to supervise

Cons

- Discourages student-centered discussion and group work
- Easier to students to lose focus
- Uneven distribution of interaction amongst class
- Difficult for teachers to move easily from student to student

Rows/Columns

Combination

Combination

This configuration is great for classes with students of varying learning levels, methods of learning, and behavioral issues. Mix and match any configuration to best fit your needs and your students' abilities. For example, set up part of the room as rows for students who need to focus on individual work and another part as a mini horseshoe for students who require more discussion-based activities.

Stadium

Stadium

A variation of the classic row configuration and runway, desks are grouped in clusters but all facing the same direction. Like runway, this layout is best suited teacher-centric classes.

Runway

Runway

Best used with smaller classes, this setup puts the emphasis on the educator. The teacher uses the runway between the two rows of facing desks to conduct the lessons. This layout is great for discussions and lecture based classes.

Substitute Folder

If you strive for perfect attendance, you and your students will benefit. In the event that you are ill and must use a sick day, it is essential that you leave a substitute folder with lesson plans and the following suggested items.

- Welcome and thank you for your assistance note
- Schedule of classes / subjects and order taught
- Bell Schedule
- Seating charts
- Printed class rosters
- Names of nearby colleagues
- Where nearest faculty restroom is located
- Classroom rules and procedures, and specific behavior policies
- Hall pass and leaving class policies
- Emergency maps, routes and procedures
- Students who receive special attention (medications, pull-out programs, accommodations)
- Names and notes about classroom aides and volunteers
- Key helpful students who can assist
- Where supplies are kept
- For elementary, any pick-up or drop-off information or procedures
- Office referral forms
- Notepad for substitute class notes

PRE-PLANNED SUBSTITUTE LESSON PLANS

Your lesson plans should be easily accessed in your sub folder or on your desk. If possible, it is also a good idea to write the day's agenda on the board. This will give the substitute and students information to refer to during the day, and will help cut down on confusion. The best assignments are those that request students to utilize text or information with they already have familiarity with. It is always a good idea to leave extra assignments in the event that students complete their work quickly.

The interactive template will allow you to create a printable lesson plan which can be left for the substitute or saved as a PDF and sent to the substitute through SmartFindExpress: http://www.teachnology.com/web\_tools/materials/substitute/daily\_plan/.

EMERGENCY LESSON PLANS

It is a good idea to have a set of emergency plans for those times when an absence catches you off guard and you have no time to leave plans. Because you do not know when you will use them, emergency lesson plans will not relate directly to what you are teaching at that time, so planning is a little tricky. Here are a few ideas for some emergency lesson Plans:

- Questions related to a chapter or story in a classroom text that you are not planning to teach
- Worksheets that are self-contained
- Activity using general academic vocabulary
- Outside reading/article with questions

Here are some websites that share ideas for all-purpose emergency sub plans and stand-alone classroom assignments:

Creating Positive Classroom Learning Enviornments

CLASSROOM ROUTINES AND PROCEDURES

According to most successful educators, consistent routines and are the foundation for creating classrooms that run smoothly and productively. From procedures for starting and ending the day, to distributing supplies, attending assemblies and working on group projects, procedures and routines can be key to minimizing conflicts and confusion and maximizing learning time. Once routines and procedures are explained and practiced consistently, they become habitual, creating an environment that is less stressful, and removing many sources of potential conflict so that teachers and students alike can focus on the work at hand. Some teachers establish a great number of procedures, while others focus on only a few important daily routines. As long as the teacher and students are comfortable and secure that the classroom is a calm and productive environment for learning, the goal has been met. To decide what routines and procedures will be necessary for the smooth functioning of your classroom, you need to identify recurring and predictable classroom events.

In general, all teachers will need to establish procedures for:

- the start of the period or day
- dismissal at the end of the period or day
- quieting the class
- students seeking help
- the movement of students and papers

Remember to re-teach and refine your class routines and procedures all year long, not just at the beginning of the school year when you first establish and teach them. Just as employees in most workplaces have periodic refreshers, so do your students need brush-ups along the way.

In planning the routines and procedures for your year, this checklist, provided by Julia G. Thompson in her book, The First-Year Teacher's Checklist, suggests a series questions to serve as a jumping off point:

MANAGING PAPERWORK AND GRADES

- What are the procedures for students turning in work?
- How is homework collected? Graded?
- What are the policies and procedures for students to complete makeup work?
- What are the policies and procedures for students to turn in late work?
- How can a student discuss concerns about a grade?
- What is the procedure for students correcting their own or classmates' papers?

PROCEDURES FOR OTHER CIRCUMSTANCES

- What are the routines for viewing videos?
- How are classroom visitors greeted?
- How is the classroom phone answered?
- What is the acceptable behavior when there is a substitute?
- What are the procedures for attending assemblies?
- What are the routines for field trips?
- How do students behave during shared activities with another class?
- How do students behave when there is a guest speaker?
- Are there procedures for class parties and celebrations?

PLANNING FOR ROUTINES AND PROCEDURES

Implementing routines and procedures with your students requires planning and specific kinds of preparation on your part. For example, if you begin class procedure each day with a “Do Now” activity, then you must prepare and post these assignments consistently, and plan for handling the assignments (how they are collected, reviewed, recorded and returned). If you ask students to independently manage their own materials and papers in the classroom, then you must set up your room in advance with clearly identified locations for students to access resources and deposit different types of work.

Tips for Better Relationships with Your Students

The best teachers are capable of maximizing the learning potential of each student in their class. They understand that the key to unlocking student potential is by developing positive, respectful relationships with their students beginning on the first day of the school year. Building a trusting relationship with your students can be both challenging and time-consuming. Great teachers become masters at it in time. They will tell you that developing solid relationships with your students is paramount in fostering academic success.

Provide Structure

Most students respond positively to having structure in their classroom. It makes them feel safe and leads to increased learning.

Teach With Enthusiasm and Passion

Students will respond positively when a teacher is enthusiastic and passionate about the content she is teaching. Excitement is contagious.

Have a Positive Attitude

Everyone has terrible days including teachers. Everyone goes through personal trials that can be difficult to handle. It is essential that your personal issues do not interfere with your ability to teach. Teachers should approach their class each day with a positive attitude. Positivity is transcending.

Make Learning Fun

Learning should be fun and exciting. Nobody wants to spend time in a classroom where lecturing and note-taking are the norms.

Use Student Interests to Your Advantage

Every student has a passion for something. Teachers should use these interests and passions to their advantage by incorporating them into their lessons. Student surveys are a fantastic way to measure these interests.

Show an Interest in Their Lives Outside of School

Your students have lives away from your classroom. Talk to them about their interests and extracurricular activities that they participate in. Take an interest in their interests even if you do not share the same passion.

Treat Them With Respect

Your students will never respect you if you do not respect them. You should never yell, use sarcasm, single a student out, or attempt to embarrass them. Those things will lead to a loss of respect from the entire class.

Go the Extra Mile

Some students need teachers who will go that extra mile to ensure that they are successful.

Look for the Good

I start each year with a notebook that I carry to every meeting and always have on my desk. It's my lifeline for the year. I fill it with ideas, due dates, etc., but most importantly, a few weeks into the year I make a list of students who I believe have had little or no positive communication from the school. I look up their addresses and phone numbers so I have them ready.

Be Sincere

Teenagers can spot a phony from miles away. You became a teacher because you have a passion for your subject area and a passion for young people. Let them know that however you can.

Restorative Practice Questions That Can Make Things Right

Questions for wrongdoers include:

1. What happened?
2. What were you thinking at the time?
3. What have you thought about since the incident?
4. Whom do you think has been affected by your actions? In what way?
5. What do you think you need to do to make things right?

Questions for those affected by wrongdoers include:

1. What did you think when you realized what had happened?
2. What effect has this incident had on you and others?
3. What has been the hardest thing for you?
4. What do you think needs to happen to make things right?

RESTORATIVE CIRCLE IDEA

CELEBRATION CIRCLE

Purpose: to build and strengthen relationships by focusing shared energy on happy occasions and positive accomplishments. These circles help students practice affirming their peers.

Materials: Talking Piece, Bells, Circle Centerpiece

Preparation: Seat everyone in a circle of chairs with no other furniture

Mindfulness Moment: Pause, Breathe, and Listen to the Sound

Opening (Can be original or found via research)

Introduce "Rounds": Pose a question and have students respond while passing talking piece to right or left of them.

(Remind the group of classroom values and guidelines)

Check-in Round: How are you doing? Is there anything particular on your mind that is important for us to know and that you feel comfortable sharing with the group?

Main Activity:

Celebration circles can be used to honor an individual, a group or an entire classroom. A celebration circle can be used for a birthday, the completion of a unit or class project, the successful performance of a play, or any event that warrants affirmation or recognition.

Round: I invite you to share your feelings about this event/achievement/ person and to share any good wishes or positive thoughts you have.

Round: No achievement is made by one person alone. We all get help somewhere along the way. So today, as we celebrate _____, who would you like to thank for helping you/ us along the way?

Round: Is there anything people would like to add to what has been said?

Check Out Round: How did you feel about today's Circle?

Closing: Thank everyone for participating in the Circle!

The Game Changer:

“The Respect Agreement”

After speaking to many teachers here is the most common way of creating a Classroom Respect Agreement. Have students take a sheet of paper and fold it to create four sections. Request that students label each quadrant as demonstrated on the Respect Agreement Template.

Working independently, have students write their ideas of what respect would look like and sound like (behaviorally). You as the teacher, must do the same thing that you have asked the students to do. At this point, don't give them an example it is fine if they struggle. After a pre-determined time, then ask students to work in groups of four or five and allow them to share. As you listen to students please share your ideas also.

Then provide each group with a piece of chart paper and have students re-create the template. Allow students to discuss/debate what the top four per quadrant should be and why. Ask each group to write their collective answers on the chart paper and post in the class. Have the class participate in a gallery walk and discuss the similarities and differences and why RESPECT is an important factor. As a class (teacher included), vote on the top four or five ideas listed in each quadrant.

After you have done this with each class period, write the final Respect Agreement by incorporating the best ideas per each quadrant. Write the ideas in each quadrant using big bold writing. Present the Respect Agreement to the class and make sure that all agree. At this time, you can discuss consequences, if the Respect Agreement is violated. Some teachers make signing the Respect Agreement a big event (some treat signing the agreement as if the students where the Founding Fathers signing the Constitution, and others treat signing the Respect Agreement like National Signing Day) and invite Administrators to the class to witness the signing.

Once signed, place the agreement where it can be easily seen and referenced.

Hacking School Discipline

9 WAYS TO CREATE A CULTURE OF EMPATHY AND RESPONSIBILITY USING RESTORATIVE JUSTICE

Hack 1: Let's Talk

Create a culture of communication to resolve conflict.

The problem: students are not being heard.

1. Identify the behavior that occurred.
2. Ask the involved student(s) to either step into the hallway for a quick conversation or to stay for a minute after class- whichever method makes more sense in your environment
3. Use open ended questions listed above to learn more about the behavior and the reasons it happened.
  - What happened?
  - What were you thinking when it happened?
  - Who did this affect, and how so?
4. Guide the conversation toward a meaningful and positive resolution.

Hack 2: Circle Up

Deal with the issue immediately and where it happens.

The problem: Classroom issues aren't being dealt with in the classroom.

The first thing that we as teachers need to do is stop offering students the easy way out through removal from class.

Circles provide a safe and supportive space where everyone can talk freely about sensitive topics, work through differences, and build consensus. Circles don't have to be used only during times of conflict. Start your class with a "check-in circle" as a great way to begin the day, and/or a closing circle to end the day.

- Have all students sit in a circle.
- Teachers should include themselves in the circle to signal they are facilitators and listeners during these gatherings, not authority figures.
- Start with a check-in question such as "What's the one interesting thing you read online yesterday?"
- Add mindfulness exercises to help release tension and build focus on the present moment.

Hack 3: Repair the Harm

Teach students to take direct responsibility for their actions.

The problem: Punitive consequences do not work.

Suspensions, detentions, and referrals to the office have one common flaw: they are exclusionary processes.

Taking responsibility for behavior is the foundation of every restorative action. When we are seeking to repair the harm, we start by posing two questions: To whom was the harm caused? How are you going to repair the harm? The students must come up with what they want to say or do as a consequence, and be willing participants in serving that consequence. You can do this by giving the student two options:

1. You can come up with a solution with me, or
2. I can come up with what your consequence will be, and I'm not going to be open to feedback.

Hack 4: Throw out the Rules

Create clear and consistent expectations.

The problem: Relying on rules doesn't work.

If students knew how to be successful independently, they would do it. But students need to be taught what to do, and that goes above and beyond teaching them what not to do.

Involving students in creating the expectations (respect agreements) allows class-wide conversations about how to expectations, and breaking them, affect all the students.

Hack 5: Create a Growth Mindset

Put students back in the driver's seat.

The problem: Too many students maintain a fixed mindset.

Many students misbehave because they don't feel successful academically. If we can build their confidence, the behavior will often take care of itself.

1. Ask students to recall the first time they did something that they are now pretty good at. Students can share these stories in small groups.
  2. Have the students map out the steps they took to advance from beginner to their current level.
  3. Whatever their personal journey, have students draw out the steps it took to get them from the start to their present locations.
  4. Explain that students just explored a time when they had a growth mindset-when they believed their abilities could be improved with practice. Use this as an example of what could happen in the classroom as well.
  5. Hang some of these progressions on the walls and reference them later to reassure students that growth is possible through hard work.

Hack 6: Teach Mindfulness

Empower students to recognize and manage their emotions.

The problem: Students lack self-awareness and regulation.

Students learn self-regulation best when they feel connected and safe, and they feel connected and safe when educators focus on building empathy instead of doling out punishment.

1. Uncover students' values
2. Strengthen the mind-body connection
3. Model empathy in the moment
4. Stress the importance of self-care

Hack 7: Cultivate Empathy

Build the capacity to listen, understand, and communicate

The problem: Students don't speak the language of empathy.

Help your students develop broader empathy by connecting them with people they normally may not encounter.

1. Be aware of body language
  2. Practice mindful language
  3. Positive reinforcement
  4. Affective statements (I feel _____ when _____ because _____)
  5. Reflective listening

Hack 8: Build Restorative Support

Focus on the small things.

The problem: Schoolwide policies are not enough.

1. Prevention matters. Relationships = Prevention. Greet students at your door, check-in emotionally with students each day.
  2. Accurate assessments to determine students areas of needs
  3. Schoolwide problem-solving
  4. Parental Involvement

Hack 9: Create a Snapshot

Use Data to Track Behaviors, Coach Students, and Address Recidivism.

The problem: We don't know what we don't know.

We often do not put attendance, behavior, motivation, home life, and other variables beside the academic data-which means were not getting the full picture.

1. Identify behaviors you or the staff want to see from students
2. Identify the most problematic behaviors
3. Pilot your behavior tracking system

How You Can Use the NVC Process

Clearly expressing
how I am
without blaming
or criticizing

Empathically receiving
how you are
without hearing
blame or criticism

OBSERVATIONS

1. What I observe (see, hear, remember, imagine, free from my evaluations) that does or does not contribute to my well-being:

“When I (see, hear) . . . ”

1. What you observe (see, hear, remember, imagine, free from your evaluations) that does or does not contribute to your well-being:

“When you see/hear . . . ”

(Sometimes unspoken when offering empathy)

FEELINGS

2. How I feel (emotion or sensation rather than thought) in relation to what I observe:

“I feel . . . ”

2. How you feel (emotion or sensation rather than thought) in relation to what you observe:

“You feel . . . ”

NEEDS

3. What I need or value (rather than a preference, or a specific action) that causes my feelings:

“ . . . because I need/value . . . ”

3. What you need or value (rather than a preference, or a specific action) that causes your feelings:

“ . . . because you need/value . . . ”

Clearly requesting that

REQUESTS

4. The concrete actions I would like taken:

“Would you be willing to . . . ?”

Designing and Delivering Engaging Lessons

Do Now Checklist

Do Nows are short activities that focus students on starting work as soon as they enter the classroom, without waiting for a teacher direction to start class. Here is a short checklist of best practices for how to implement successful Do Now practice in your classroom.

Steps to a successful Do Now practice:

- Consistency is key. Students should always find the Do Now in the same place. Best places to post the Do Now include:
  - Write it on the board.
  - Include a paper Do Now on the first page of the daily packet.
  - Students pick up a paper Do Now that can be collected and graded from the same spot in the classroom every day.
- Build student independence. The Do Nows should not require additional directions from teachers for students to complete. It defeats the purpose of the Do Now to have a teacher stop the class and explain the activity.
- Keep it short. The Do Now should take 3 - 5 minutes to complete.
- Put pencil to paper. The Do Now should result in a written product from students.
- Pair with your lesson plan. The Do Now is most effective when used to either:
  - Preview that day's lesson.
  - Review a recent lesson.
- Observe which questions students spend time working on. Save time on reviewing the Do Now answers by selecting a few key questions to review together as a class, then pair your students to review answers for the others together.
- Reinforce the right answer. It can be helpful to require students to write down correct Do Now answers in their notebooks if they miss an answer.
- Specify how you want students to answer. Use the Do Now as a chance to reinforce writing out full, grammatically correct sentences with a simple instruction: Answer in complete sentences. Or, if you want students to focus only on the right answer, specify: Answer only.

Do Now Activities and Resources

Review reading comprehension

Have students respond to close reading questions of an excerpted paragraph from a reading. This works particularly well to review text that was close read recently. Instruct students to annotate a short passage of text (that they've read before) with 3 - 5 critical reflection questions.

Develop critical thinking skills

Foster a discussion by having students respond in a short paragraph form to a civic engagement question. This works particularly well to preview an upcoming lesson or topic of discussion, especially for older learners. However, because these questions can be open-ended, it's best to pick just one or two to keep the lesson at the five minute limit--and also to limit review time.

Teach not just the how but the why

Review and practice math skills and concepts with a worksheet. If you're practicing functions, 7 - 10 quick problems can be completed in 5 minutes. However, if you also want students to review and explain why they completed the equation the way that they did (for example, walking through the steps of long division, or explaining the order of arithmetic equations) on the worksheet, choose fewer questions.

Build stability and routine for students who need it most

If you work with students with disabilities, Do Nows can also act as a way to bolster confidence in knowledge, ingrain knowledge through repetition, and also preview what the lesson for the day will be, adding stability to his or her routine.

THE COMPONENTS OF THE FIVE-STEP LESSON STRUCTURE

1. The Opening – What Students Will Learn and Why It Is Important
2. Introduction to New Material – The Explicit Explanation
3. Guided Practice
4. Independent Practice
5. The Closing – Stressing Connections and Checking for Understanding

Beginning

Lesson Opening

- Communicate to students WHAT they are going to learn.
- Communicate to students WHY IT IS IMPORTANT to learn this material.
- Communicate to students HOW IT RELATES to what has been done previously.
- Communicate to students HOW the learning will occur.
- Engage students and CAPTURE THEIR INTEREST.
- Provide and model CLEAR, HIGH EXPECTATIONS OF BEHAVIOR (as to materials and activities).
- Check for understanding by asking students to SUMMARIZE EXPECTATIONS and ASK CLARIFYING QUESTIONS.

Middle

Introduction/ Guided Practice/ Independent Practice

Introduction- Explicit Explanation

- What information will you convey? Emphasize and reiterate key points without glossing over ideas or drowning students in detail
- How will you convey the information? Use multiple approaches when presenting new information.
- What will students be doing? Children do not learn as passive agents, so build in activities that allow students to “take in” the information.
- How will you know that your students understand? Target potential misunderstandings.
- How will you know that your students understand? Check for understanding.
- The Bottom Line—Reaching Your Objective

Guided Practice

- Be clear about and model behavioral expectations ( in small group settings etc.
- Ensure that all students have an opportunity to practice
- Use multiple opportunities for practice
- Scaffold practice exercise from easy to hard
- Be clear how an activity aligns to the objective
- Monitor and correct student performance

Checking for Understanding

- Questioning
- Use of dry-erase boards
- Thumbs Up/Thumbs Down
- "Fist to Five"-Use of five fingers if students strongly agree and any number in between to show intermediate level of agreement and no fingers if they strongly disagree.
- Signal cards (different color or labeled yes/no note cards)
- Observations and anecdotal records

Independent Practice

- Be clear about and model behavior expectations
- Activity should focus on the achievement of the objective
- All students should have to master the skill or knowledge independently
- Provide opportunity for extension

End

Closure/ Reflection on Lesson

Closure

- Reinforces the lesson and clarifies the objective that the students have learned.
- Reemphasizes the significance of the objective
- Assesses students' mastery of , or progress toward the objective

Questions for reflection

- What did students learn today?
- What is the significance of what the students learned today?
- What progress did students make toward the objective?

Check for Understanding

Gathering data on student mastery

What is Checking for Understanding?

Checking for Understanding (CFU) is the backbone of effective instruction. Checking for Understanding is the teacher continually verifying that students are learning what is being taught while it is being taught. CFU provides the teacher the opportunity to improve learning based on student responses throughout the teaching and learning process. Using CFU in “real-time” allows teachers to make crucial instructional decisions as necessary (like re-teaching) during lesson delivery.

53 Ways to Check for Understanding

Why is Checking for Understanding so beneficial?

- It allows the teacher to make instructional decisions during the lesson. It informs the teacher when to speed up, slow down, or re-teach. CFU helps pace the lesson.
  - When teachers look at independent work, homework, quizzes, or state test results to see if students learned...it's too late to modify instruction.
  - CFU is the back bone of effective instruction and Explicit Direct Instruction... because you measure and monitor student learning in real time.
  - CFU guarantees high student success (80-100%)... because you revise teaching in direct response to student learning.
  - CFU ensures that your students will not be practicing and reinforcing their mistakes. Practice makes permanent, not perfect!

Analyze and Plan Cold Call Prompts

Planning Activity

Objective: Improve your use of Cold Call by analyzing and critiquing a list of prompts, and then draft two prompts for an upcoming lesson.

Task: In this activity, you will read and analyze different Cold Call prompts, evaluate and revise the prompts based on four keys for effective Cold Call, and then draft two Cold Calls to add to an upcoming lesson.

Estimated Time: 25 minutes

Background: Teachers call on whom they want to participate, regardless of whose hand is raised. This allows them to (1) Check for Understanding effectively and systematically, (2) Foster a culture of engaged accountability by ensuring that all students think it's possible that they're about to be called on, (3) Drive the pacing of their lesson, (4) Incentivize students to give maximum effort on rigorous questions and tasks as they know they could be called on to share their thinking publicly.

Here are four keys to effective Cold Call:

- Be Positive: It's not a "gotcha" (e.g., "What did I just say?") but a real question.

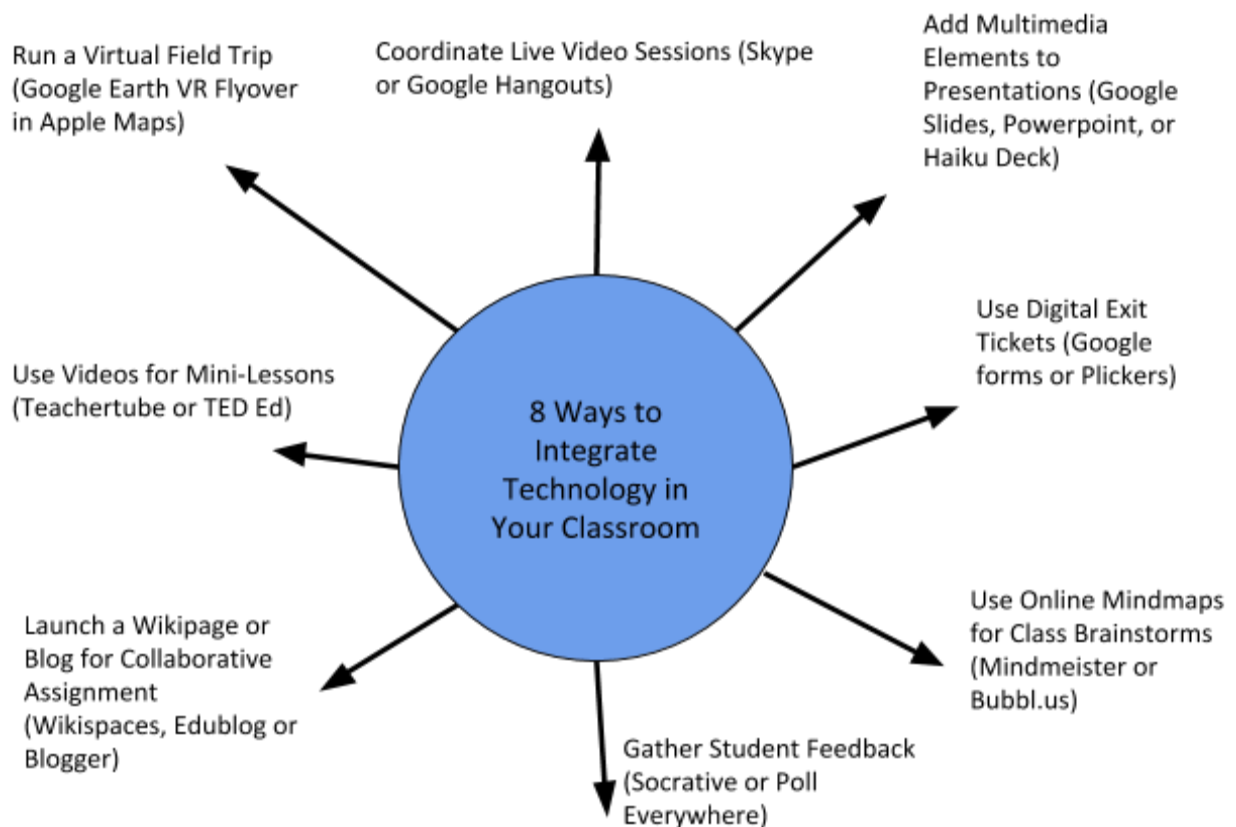

You

want students to get it right. A smile always helps to increase positivity.

- Be Systematic: Show that it's universal and not personal; Cold Calls come to everyone. Call on multiple students, all around the room. This helps Cold Call support Check for Understanding.
- Be Predictable: Let students know it's coming, either right now or eventually.
- Unbundle: Break big complex questions apart into smaller connected ones. This will increase pacing and energy and cause students to listen to one another.

Technology Integration

There are many ways to integrate technology into all classrooms. Whether you have 1:1 device access or a few tablets that students must share, there are many resources to compliment lessons and activities that you teach. We have compiled a list of opportunities and resources for technology integration.

Differentiation

Key Concepts of Differentiated Instruction

This flow chart is a concept map of effective Differentiated Instruction. It 'unpacks' the concept of differentiation by showing the key elements in the concept and relationships among those elements. Someone who practices 'defensible differentiation' attends to all of the elements and understands the impact that one element has on all of the others. No one—no matter how good a teacher—can be perfect in all aspects of the model all of the time. The goal is not perfection, but rather to continue deepening one's understanding of the elements and to continue expanding one's capacity to plan and teach with the elements in mind.

EL Strategies Desk Cards

(Tip Sheets for ALL Classroom Teachers)

Sponsored by the Connecticut Department of Education | Developed by the Connecticut RESC Alliance (2009); Revised (2015)

ENGLISH LEARNERS (ELS) ARE THE FASTEST GROWING POPULATION IN OUR COUNTRY.

According to the Connecticut State Department of Education (2011), 29,527 ELs in 164 Local Educational Agencies (LEA) spoke 139 languages other than English at home. The EL strategies desk card tool will help teachers support our EL students. In this desk card you will find a brief description of the characteristics of ELs at the different language proficiency levels, questioning techniques and teaching strategies for every level.

- Stage lasts six months to one year, typically
- May not talk at all; “silent period”
- Is learning to understand basic conversation & instructions such as “hello, how are you?”, “sit down, line up, etc.”
- Is beginning to speak in one and two word phrases
- May have cultural conflicts or misunderstandings

QUESTIONING TECHNIQUES:

- Ask “yes” or “no” questions (eg. “Is this a...?”, “Does this...?”)
- Use “point to”, “circle”, “find”, “show me”, “draw”
- Ask student to match pictures to words or objects
- Ask student to categorize objects

SPECIFIC TEACHING STRATEGIES FOR LEVEL 1:

- Teach basic survival English, such as “bathroom,” “lunch,” “home”
- Help the student to learn the classroom routines
- Use a student buddy, if possible someone with the same language
- Use visual clues as much as possible, such as pictures, gestures, pointing, graphic organizers

- Use seating arrangements to be conducive for cooperative (or collaborative) learning activities, seat EL students purposefully (near the teacher or next to a buddy)
- Modify your speech to aid comprehension, speak slowly and clearly
- When asking questions, allow for “wait time” more than typical (3-5 seconds)
- Allow EL students to talk to a peer in their native language when necessary to clarify understanding
- Make lessons visual. Use visual representations of new vocabulary and use graphs, maps, photographs, drawings, and charts to introduce new vocabulary and concepts with videos
- Use designated supports for EL for instruction, testing and assignments

Student Engagement

Student Engagement

When students are engaged, they are actively involved in their learning. They approach learning tasks with curiosity, enthusiasm and persistence, and make intellectual connections between the subject, other information they have learned, and their own life experiences and ideas. Teachers who can artfully engage their students not only increase student content mastery, but create students who find joy in learning and are more likely to become lifelong learners.

Quick List:

- Activate Prior Knowledge
- Spark Curiosity
- Pose Real-Life Problems
- Foster Active Investigation
- Allow Self-Directed Exploration
- Promote Group Interaction
- Encourage Collaboration
- Inspire Lively Discussion
- Offer Choices
- Tap Into Individual Creativity
- Use Games and Humor
- Nurture Independent Thinking
- Involve All Participants

Indicators of Responses to Work

In the effort to help teachers and other educators assess the presence or absence of engagement and to develop a classroom or school profile to guide action, I have developed a list of possible indicators of engagement, as well as the other four reactions that I have suggested might be used to characterize student responses to the work they are expected to do:

Engagement Indicators

- The student is attentive to the task because he or she finds personal meaning and value in the task; the student sees the task as responding to motives and values he or she brings to the work.
- The student persists with the task even when he or she experiences difficulty and does not compromise personal standards for completion of the task even though he or she might be able to negotiate a lower standard if he or she wanted to.
- The student volunteers resources under his or her control—time, effort, and attention—which is to say that the student is committed to the work and places moral value on its completion.

Strategic Compliance Indicators

- The student is attentive to the task because he or she perceives that the receipt of some desired extrinsic reward is conditionally available to those who pay attention to the task and do what is required of them.
- The student persists with the task only up to the point of ensuring that the desired reward is offered, and the student is willing to accept the reward and abandon the task even though he or she may not be personally satisfied that the work done is of the quality that he or she could produce.
- The student allocates only as much time, energy, and resources as are required to get the reward offered or desired.

Ritual Compliance Indicators

- The student pays minimal attention to the work, is easily distracted, and is constantly seeking alternative activity to pursue. For example, it appears that texting has now become a favorite pastime for those who are ritually compliant.
- The student is easily discouraged from completing the task and regularly tries to avoid the task or get the requirements of the work waived or compromised.

- The student does only those things that must be done and does little or nothing outside the context of direct supervision by the teacher or other adults.

Retreatism Indicators

- The student does not attend to the work, but does not engage in activity that distracts others. Indeed, the student often employs strategies to conceal his or her lack of involvement—for example, sleeping with eyes wide open and smiling from time to time.
- Because the student does not do the work, persistence is totally lacking.
- The student does nothing and, when forced through direct supervision to do the task, either engages in ritual behavior or rebellion.

Rebellion Indicators

- The student overtly refuses to comply with the requirements of the task. This refusal may involve cheating, refusing to do the work, or even doing other work in place of that which is expected.
- Because the student does not do the work, persistence is totally lacking.
- Alienation rather than commitment is evident. Unlike the retreaters, students who rebel are likely to be active in their rejection of the task, up to and including efforts to sabotage the work, cheat, and build negative coalitions of other students around the work and the rejection of the values the work suggests.

ENGAGEMENT DEFINED

Four components are always present when a student is engaged:

1. The engaged student is attentive, in the sense that he or she pays attention to and focuses on the tasks associated with the work being done.
2. The engaged student is committed. He or she voluntarily (that is, with-out the promise of extrinsic rewards or the threat of negative consequences) deploys scarce resources under his or her control (time, attention, and effort, for example) to support the activity called for by the task.
3. The engaged student is persistent. He or she sticks with the task even when it presents difficulties.
4. The engaged student finds meaning and value in the tasks that make up the work.

Sometimes on-task behavior is confused with engagement. On-task behavior indicates only that a student is attentive to a task. It says nothing of the student's willingness to persist with the task when he or she experiences difficulty. It also says nothing about the value the student attaches to the task or the meaning he or she associates with the activity related to it. A student might persist with a difficult task simply because he or she places value on some extrinsic rewards promised for successful completion of the task—for example, a good grade, admission to college, or eligibility to participate in extracurricular activities. Take the promise of these extrinsic rewards away, and the student is likely to abandon the task since completing it has no other meaning or value for him or her. For example, students who aspire to enter highly selective colleges are more likely to do whatever it takes to get a good grade than are students whose college aspirations are less lofty.

Even when a student is attentive and persistent, there is no assurance that the student is engaged. Engagement involves commitment as well as attention and persistence. Attention can be focused through fear and the threat of punishment, but those who are attentive because of fear and threat are not engaged. Neither are those who pay attention and persist because they place a high value on some reward that is extrinsic to the work. Commitment, attention, and persistence must be present to justify the claim that the student is engaged.

Data

Using Data in your Class and School

Why Data?

Student data plays an integral role in finding opportunities for meaningful, large-scale change, while also making the process manageable by providing focus. When our data drives our instruction, we can increase student understanding and build student confidence. We have to create that vision for what we're going to achieve, and we have to create that plan for how we're going to achieve it and relay that vision, so everyone is on board.

Analyzing Data with Student Data Protocols

Student data protocols are a series of steps listed below for analyzing student data.

1. Choose a point of focus- What data point catches your attention as an outlier? Who is struggling the most? Who has done exceedingly well that you might want to use as a model for others?
2. Pull relevant data and state observations- Examine the whole data set to get the bigger picture. What are we seeing in the data?
3. Interpret the data- What does the data suggest? Is there an internal or external force impacting the data?
4. Determine the implications- How will this data impact our instructional strategies?
5. Create a framework to initiate this change- Seek feedback from students and your peers and use that feedback to adjust approaches to design and teaching.
6. Track growth- As change is implemented, track your data to become more aware of student needs and how to interact with your students.

Data Teams

Data Teams are a collaborative model for implementing data-driven decision making at the instructional level. It provides a structure for teachers to specifically identify areas of student need and collaboratively decide on the best instructional approach in response to those needs.

Your Data Teams will:

- Collaborate to examine student formative assessment data
- Develop short-cycle Data Team assessments
- Monitor data

- Analyze strengths and obstacles
- Establish learning goals
- Select common instructional strategies for groups of students
- Develop result indicators to measure and monitor the learning

5 TYPES OF DATA YOU MUST COLLECT TO MOVE YOUR STUDENTS FORWARD

Directions: Use this Plan-Do-Study-Act (PDSA) tool to plan and document your progress with tests of change conducted as part of chartered performance improvement projects (PIPs). While the charter will have clearly established the goals, scope, timing, milestones, and team roles and responsibilities for a project, the PIP team asked to carry out the project will need to determine how to complete the work. This tool should be completed by the project leader/manager/coordinator with review and input by the project team. Answer the first two questions below for your PIP. Then as you plan to test changes to meet your aim, answer question 3 below and plan, conduct, and document your PDSA cycles. Remember that a PIP will usually involve multiple PDSA cycles in order to achieve your aim. Use as many forms as you need to track your PDSA cycles.

Model for Improvement: Three questions for improvement

1. What are we trying to accomplish (aim)?

State your aim (review your PIP charter – and include your bold aim that will improve resident health outcomes and quality of care)

2. How will we know that change is an improvement (measures)?

Describe the measureable outcome(s) you want to see

3. What change can we make that will result in an improvement?

Define the processes currently in place; use process mapping or flow charting

Identify opportunities for improvement that exist (look for causes of problems that have occurred – see Guidance for Performing Root Cause Analysis with Performance Improvement Projects; or identify potential problems before they occur – see Guidance for Performing Failure Mode Effects Analysis with Performance Improvement Projects) (see root cause analysis tool):

- Points where breakdowns occur
- “Work-a-rounds” that have been developed
- Variation that occurs
- Duplicate or unnecessary steps

Decide what you will change in the process; determine your intervention based on your analysis

- Identify better ways to do things that address the root causes of the problem
- Learn what has worked at other organizations (copy)
- Review the best available evidence for what works (literature, studies, experts, guidelines)
- Remember that solution doesn’t have to be perfect the first time

What changes are we going to make based on our findings?

What exactly are we going to do?

What were the results?

When and how did we do it?

Whenever feasible, it will be helpful to involve direct care staff.         Plan a small test of change.         How long will the change take to implement?         What resources will they need?         What data need to be collected? | List your action steps along with person(s) responsible and time line. |

| Act Based on what was learned from the test: Adapt – modify the changes and repeat PDSA cycle. Adopt – consider expanding the changes in your organization to additional residents, staff, and units. Abandon – change your approach and repeat PDSA cycle. | Describe what modifications to the plan will be made for the next cycle from what you learned. |

Carousel Brainstorming | Teacher Planning Sheet

Key understandings (what students must know and/or be able to do):

Create four to six open-ended questions or subtopics that will prompt students to share what they know about the key understandings they should be developing about the topic. Record these here, then write each on a separate sheet of chart paper for students to work with as described on page 92.

|                 |                 |
|-----------------|-----------------|
| Chart 1: | Chart 2: |
| Chart 3: | Chart 4: |
| Chart 5: | Chart 6: |

Tips for Making the Carousel Brainstorming Strategy Work

- Design questions/subtopics that are open-ended, allowing for an unlimited number of responses.
- Include no more than five members in a group.
- Provide a different-color marker for each group.
- After two to three minutes, rotate the groups.
- Have the marker rotate with the group.
- Rotate the recorder at each chart.
- Remind students that they
  - must read what previous groups have written.
  - may not repeat what has been written.
  - may add an asterisk or exclamation point if they agree strongly with a prior group's response.
  - may write a question mark next to or circle a prior group's response. (This will increase the likelihood of accuracy on the charts and pinpoint areas of confusion to be reviewed.)
- Use the charts for a written follow-up activity with students. (For example: Choose the character with whom you most identify. Compare and contrast yourself with this character in at least three ways.)

- Choose one character and describe how this character changes over time in at least two ways. Explain why these changes occur.

- Choose at least three themes and give evidence from the story of these themes in action.
- Sequence at least five events from the story and discuss how they each affected the main character.
- Illustrate at least three symbols from the story and write a description of the significance of each.
- Choose at least three actions the main character took and discuss the character's motivation (Why did he/she take each action?)

Accountable Talk Student Conversation Starters

Accountable Talk simply stated...

- It holds students accountable to the classroom community. It is rigorous reasoning.
- Talk that supports the development of student reasoning.
- Talk that supports improvement of ability to communicate their thinking.

REVOICE

The teacher repeats part or all of a students utterance and asks the student to verify whether their interpretation is correct.

- Especially helpful to teachers when they do not understand what was said.
- Revoicing is not simply repeating, the third part (verification) is necessary.

Student Impact:

- The student realizes that the teacher wants to understand their contribution. Over time this can have a profound effect.

Add-On

Teacher asks students to contribute to the discussion by including their own information.

- Move can also referred to as "linking contributions."
- Makes an explicit relationship between a new contribution and what has gone on before.

Student Impact:

- When students hear their own contributions are being built upon, their own investment in the course of discussion grows

RESTATE/REPEAT

Asking students, "can you repeat/restate what he/she just said?"

Student Impact:

- Repeating and reformulating a peers comments in your own words requires another layer of thinking and processing.
- Change the way in which students listen. Influences engagement because someone is listening to them.

MAKE AN ANALOGY

Teacher asks students to voice a comparison that describes a specific relationship between another's statement.

- This move deepens students understanding of concepts and relates ideas between peers.

Student Impact:

- Students are analyzing another's response and gaining deeper understanding of concept

AGREE/DISAGREE

Do you agree or disagree with what was just said.. Why?

- Using evidence from text and sources to justify their thinking

Student Impact:

- Opportunity to co-construct knowledge together because you are building on peers
- Provides opportunity for probing, and opportunities for deepening conversations and thinking

CALL TO ACTION

Student initiated, an individual or group identify a response that requires "action".

- Move can initiate deep conversation because of the significance to individuals or groups of students
- It is important to maintain focus of content

Student Impact

- Students are empowered by feeling a connection and level of importance for a significant topic

SPECIFIC EXAMPLE

Teacher asks students to explain citing examples.

- Move can also referred to as "press for reasoning."
- Pressing can include providing textual evidence, requiring examples from life, other classroom conversations, and/or the world.

Student Impact:

- Student feels confident by including prior learning/experience.

Family Engagement

Family Engagement

Every Student Succeeds Act, 2019

Connecticut mandates that school districts MUST present a comprehensive parent engagement plan to families and that plan must be made available to families.

Family Engagement is: Full, equal, equitable partnerships among families, educators and community partners to promote children's learning from birth through college and career.

Guiding Principles Grounded in Research

1. Build collaborative, trusting relationships focused on learning.
2. Listen to what families say about their children's interests and challenges.
3. Model high quality learning practices.
4. Share information frequently with families about how their children are doing.
5. Talk with students about how they want teachers and their family to support their learning.
6. Co-Develop cultural competence among staff and families.
7. Support parents to become effective leaders and advocates for their children.

High Impact Family Engagement Action (Examples from Charts 1-4)

- Neighborhood walks to visit families
- Implementing "two-way" communication with families (i.e. Class Dojo) and making communication with families a regular practice
- Sharing of educational resources and modeling best practices with families
- Opening school and classroom on a regular basis and accommodating parents with flexible scheduling
- Development of focused or issue specific student and family events (i.e. Town Hall forums) that invite input and / or disperse information in both formal and informal events
- Staff and families work together developing success and intervention plans for students
- Ensuring that after-school programs are connected to the school day with input from the school, community-based organizations, and families to create a "hub" of activities for students, families, and community members
- Parents sit on all relevant school committees and have a voice in related matters

Parent Communication

During the first days of school, it is advised that you send home a letter introducing yourself to the parents of your new students. Your letter should include:

- Name
- Room number
- Contact information (telephone number; e-mail)
- Dates to save on their calendars
- General curriculum for the first month
- Expectations of students
- Classroom homework policy
- Special supplies needed

Dear Families,

Welcome to the new school year at _____. I am looking forward to getting to know you and your student this year. I wanted to take this opportunity to share some information about my class and encourage you to communicate with me.

I am committed to helping every student learn in my class. I believe it is important for families and schools to work together and share responsibility for student success. I value family members' expertise about their children. Families know a student best and I can learn from you. Also, it is important for the students to know that teachers and families are working together to support their learning. Specifically, I want to share about class communication, expectations, and events for the upcoming year. More specific information from your students will be coming your way in the next few weeks.

Thank you for reading this letter. I look forward to hearing from you.

Please return the form below with your comments and contact information; or email me at _____; or leave a message at _____.

Sincerely,

Communication Expectations

- Class Dojo: Check daily for announcements and photos
- Powerschool: Check for updates to grades

Events {include own events}

- We will be having several “learning open houses” during the various times (usual class time, before and after school) when you will be invited to come and experience our learning activities.
- Every family is invited and encouraged to attend with their student.

Self-Care

The 5 N's of Teacher Self-Care

Teachers take on a lot. We are carrying a lot of weight: mental, emotional, and even physical—the infamous “teacher bag” stuffed to the seams—and, the weight of social expectations put on teachers to have “Pinterest perfect” classrooms, hashtag-worthy moments #inspiredbystudents, and certainly to do justice to the volatile political landscape by engaging in relevant and important movements like #metoo and #blacklivesmatter—all while trying to actually teach our students they matter #morethanatest.

Phew! With all of that power/responsibility, it most definitely takes from June to August to loosen our shoulders again, to recharge our mental batteries so that we can feel sharp, relevant, and engaging in the classroom, and to press reset on our empathy button so that we can carry that emotional anvil to and from school every day again. But, teachers, we do NOT have to wait until summer break to rejuvenate! Take heart, as I tell you my top five ways, what I call, “Five N’s” to practice teacher-self-care every day (YUP!) of the week:

1. Naps

My new-found solution for rest comes from Daniel Pink, author of When, and is lovingly referred to as the “Nappucino.” Pink claims that because scientific studies suggest 20-25 minutes of sleep is a sweet-spot that can rejuvenate and recover lost sleep hours, the best way to take a nap is to schedule it for 30 minutes on your calendar—try to schedule a nap every day! At the scheduled time, quickly drink a full cup of coffee (iced or at least room temperature), then fall asleep (with headphones, a meditation soundtrack, whatever it takes to let you drift off as quickly as possible—this usually takes most of us around 10 minutes). The caffeine in the coffee will kick in after 20 minutes, waking you from your nap at the ideal time.

2. Nourishment

Teachers face nutritional challenges that come with the territory of being unbelievably busy people. How many times have you “forgotten” to eat during a busy day of lesson planning, teaching, grading, tutoring, meetings, coaching, etc. etc. etc.? To avoid the typical reaction to the end-of-the-day teacher munchies—binging on chips, candy, or whatever other terrible food can fit in your car’s cup holder—plan ahead. Pack a cooler bag with healthy snacks for your way home. If you fuel your late afternoon with vegetable sticks, a protein-packed Greek yogurt, or a handful of almonds and water that has had time for frozen cucumber slices or frozen berries to thaw and infuse throughout the day, you will arrive home (or to the gym) feeling refreshed instead of even more tired—like a superhero should!

3. Netflix

The idea here is to find some time to “mindlessly” relax. So maybe not Netflix, per se, but if TV is the thing, then go for it! It is important to begin a shut-down routine at the end of the day that is all your own (putting the kids to bed and telling story after story until you want to pass out yourself does not count!). Something that signals to your brain that your body is ready to relax. This signal can be a physical cue, like Yoga or light stretching, but really should be a quick and easy (30 minutes maximum) relaxation exercise for the brain. Completing one page in an inspirational adult coloring book, working on a difficult jigsaw puzzle, even surfing through Pinterest are all great ways to take a mental break at the end of your day. I bet Thor plays a mean game of Candy Crush!

4. Nurture

While superheroes are certainly very busy, they all make time for family of some kind. When we are asking students to trust that we have created for them a safe, caring environment for learning, when we ask them to be their most vulnerable selves in our classrooms, we need to be sure that we are modeling how to do this for them—or, at least practicing what we preach—in our own lives. Whether you have a #teachertribe of like-minded colleagues (a, “Justice League,” if you will?) or close relationships with members of your family, it’s important to nurture these relationships. Take time each day to encourage, motivate, or LOL with someone in your inner circle. Set a calendar reminder or alarm on your phone to remind you to send one text message, email, Facebook message, or other form of a quick note to someone every day. The recipient(s) of your notes will be delighted, but you’ll also feel the mental and emotional benefits of regularly, intentionally thinking of others.

5. Notetaking

My last suggestion for superhero self-care is to take notes. John Dewey, noted educator and champion of democracy and social justice in education, said: “We do not learn from experience...we learn from reflecting on experience.” We are practitioners of education—meaning that we are actively practicing our jobs every day. What are we doing with all of the information we’re learning from our “practice sessions”? Reflection does not have to be lengthy, but it should be focused and critical. Use the Notes app on your phone (or whatever you use to capture short bits of information) to record a 1-2 sentence answer to one question each day. Choose a question and stick to it every day for at least 30 days. At the end of the month, you can make longer observations if you wish, but you'll have at least a snapshot of how you feel about a particular topic or issue over time and from within different contexts. Here are some of my favorite focused questions for notetaking:

- What made me laugh today?
- What made me feel worthwhile today?
- What was the best thing that happened today?
- I wish I had more time today to do...
- How am I feeling right now?
- What was the most important thing I did today?
- What did I learn today?

Start the Day Right

The way we start our day sets the tone. Taking time for yourself in the morning can ease stress and create more peaceful feelings before heading to a high-pressure day of teaching. These activities can take as little as 5–10 minutes, but they make a big difference in how you start your day:

- Meditation—Take a few minutes to focus your mind.
- Mindful breathing—if meditation isn't your thing, just a few minutes of mindful breathing has been “linked to improved heart, brain, digestive and immune system function, as well as overall stress reduction.”
- Exercise—Make time for exercise that you enjoy, like stretching, walking, running, yoga, playing sports, or a trip to the gym. Exercise is a great way to wake up our minds and bodies, and it relieves stress too!

Keep it up at school.

A good start to the day is important, but it can be challenging to maintain the focus and peace of a morning routine when faced with the pressures of school. Here are some ideas to maintain some focus on your own needs as you care for others:

- Avoid trivial classroom conflicts; if your students can work it out with themselves, let them.
- Prioritize and eliminate—decide what is the best use of your time and eliminate the extras that aren't necessary and detract from that.
- Keep a small pick-me-up at your desk, like tea, chocolate, nuts, a stress ball.
- Accept that you're a “teacher in progress”—you don't have to be perfect. We should all continue growing and learning, and we all make mistakes.
- Learn to say no. This may be one of the hardest, but focusing on priorities and saying no to things that don't fit those priorities can relieve huge amounts of stress.

End the day on a positive note.

There are a lot of important things that we can try to cram into the end of the day—it's the last chance to cross items off our to-do list. Make sure some of those to-dos are taking care of you!

- Connect with others—friends, family, loved ones.
- Give yourself time to unwind.
- Get out and enjoy nature—even 20 minutes can impact us. Combine it with a walk or bike ride for a bonus!
- Get more sleep! This can be really difficult, but 2–3 extra hours of sleep each week can greatly improve our health, mood, and stamina.

We're not saying this is a checklist of items that you need to tackle—we all know another list of things to do is NOT what teachers need. The important thing is to find self-care options that will make a difference for you.

Culturally Responsive Teaching

FIVE KEY CULTURALLY RESPONSIVE TEACHING MOVES

1. Build authentic relationships.

They are the on-ramp to engagement and learning.

2. Use the brain's memory systems for deeper learning.

Connecting new content through music, movement, and visuals strengthens the neural pathways for comprehension.

3. Acknowledge diverse students' stress response.

This ranges from everyday micro-aggressions and help calm the brain.

4. Use ritual, recitation, repetition, and rhythm as content processing power tools.

5. Create a community of learners by building on students' values of collaboration and connection. It creates intellectual safety, reducing stereotype threat.

3 TIPS TO MAKE ANY LESSON MORE CULTURALLY RESPONSIVE

(by Zaretta Hammond)

Culturally Responsive Teaching is Transformative

- It means respecting the cultures and experiences of various groups and then uses these as resources for teaching and learning.
- It appreciates the existing strengths and accomplishments of all students and develops them further in instruction.

TIP #1

GAMIFY IT

Games are the power strategy for culturally-grounded learning because they get the brain's attention and require active processing.

Attention is the first step in learning. We cannot learn, remember, or understand what we don't first pay attention to.

Call and response is just a way to get the brain's attention.

Most games employ a lot of the cultural tools you'd find in oral traditions – repetition, solving a puzzle, making connections between things that don't seem to be related (Ever play Taboo or Apples to Apples?).

TIP #2

MAKE IT SOCIAL

Organizing learning so that students rely on each other will build on diverse students' communal orientation.

This communal orientation can be summed up in the African proverb, "I am because we are."

Even making learning slightly competitive in a good-natured way increases students' level of attention and engagement.

It's why the T.V. show Survivor has been around for so many years; it's a social-based game.

TIP #3

STORIFY IT

The brain is wired to remember stories and to use the story structure to make sense of the world. That's why every culture has creation stories.

In oral traditions, stories play a bigger role in teaching lessons about manners, morality, or simply what plants to eat or not eat in the wilderness because it's the way content is remembered.

Diverse students (and all students, really) learn content more effectively if they can create a coherent narrative about the topic or process presented. That's the brain's way of weaving it all together.

(Bonus: It also offers a great way to check for understanding and correct misconceptions.)

Culturally Responsive Teaching: Four Misconceptions

Misconception One

Culturally responsive teaching is the same as multicultural or social justice education.

- Multicultural, Social Justice and Culturally Responsive education are all unique approaches while at times overlapping with one another.
- Multicultural Education celebrates the diversity among students and staff. Social Justice Education builds a lens for the students to look at the world and see where matters are not fair or just.
- Culturally Responsive Education focuses on building the learning capacity of each student. It leverages the affective and the cognitive scaffolding that students bring with them.

Misconception Two

Culturally responsive teaching must start with addressing implicit bias.

- If you start with implicit bias, you can't pivot to instruction. Whereas when you understand inequity by design, you can actually talk about instruction but also come back to talk about microaggressions. The sequencing of that is really important.

Misconception Three

Culturally responsive teaching is all about building relationships and self-esteem.

- For students who have been marginalized and don't feel welcome, that relationship becomes important BUT the trusting relationship is just one part, and not the part. It is the on-ramp to the kind of cognitive high-level problem-solving and higher-order thinking we want students to do.

Misconception Four

Culturally responsive teaching is about choosing the right strategies.

- Teachers need to interrogate their practice a little more robustly. It's not plug and play. The instructional shifts that will make the biggest differences don't always look "cultural" at all, because they aren't the kind of things that work only for diverse students. This kind of teaching is good for all brains. What you're doing to actually reach your lowest performing students is going to be good for your highest performing students.

DIMENSIONS OF EQUITY

As equity-focused educators, it is important to distinguish between three key areas in education: multicultural education, social justice education, and culturally responsive teaching. Too often the terms are used interchangeably when they are not. Below is a simple chart to help you understand the distinctions between them. A key point to remember, only CRT is focused on the cognitive development of under-served students. Multicultural and social justice education have more of a supporting role in culturally responsive teaching.

| MULTICULTURALEDUCATION  | SOCIAL JUSTICEEDUCATION  | CULTURALLYRESPONSIVE PEDAGOGY   |
| Focuses on celebrating diversity  | Focuses on exposing the social political context that students experience  | Focuses on improving the learning capacity of diverse students who have been marginalized educationally                     |
| Centers around creating positive social interactions across difference  | Centers around raising students' consciousness about inequity in everyday social, environmental, economic, and political aspects of life | Centers around the affective & cognitive aspects of teaching and learning   |
| Concerns itself with exposing privileged students to diverse literature, multiple perspectives, and inclusion in the curriculum as well as help students of color see themselves reflected. | Concerns itself with creating lenses to recognize and interrupt inequitable patterns and practices in society.                           | Concerns itself with building resilience and academic mindset by pushing back on dominant narratives about people of color. |
| Social Harmony   | Critical Consciousness  | Independent Learning   |

A Quick and Easy School Visit Observation Guide

Culturally responsive teaching emphasizes cultural ways of learning and cognition rather than focusing on cosmetic “race related” displays. Affirmation of students’ cultural roots comes through incorporating deep cultural values and cultural ways of learning (using the memory systems of the brain, organizing around social interaction (collectivism), and combining oratory skills with academic talk) rather than through superficial pictures of “heroes” or images of Africa or Mexico or irrelevant mentioning in the curriculum.

TO: All Administrators and Teachers August 5, 2019
FROM: Dr. Iline Tracey, Assistant Superintendent; and David Cicarella, NHFT President
RE: CIA/School Meetings for 2019-2020

School Meetings

School meetings for teachers commence at each school's respective dismissal time and run for up to 90 minutes as per the teachers' contract.

CIA Meetings

CIA meetings have always been a challenge due to the staggered release time of our schools to accommodate busing schedules. As agreed to in the past we are moving the start time back to allow for travel time so all teachers will be able to attend the full 90 minutes session. The accommodation for teachers is-- there will only be 4 CIA meetings for the entire year as opposed to 10 meetings (one per month). This means that on several months teachers will only be required to attend 2 after school meetings.

Please note that during the months of September, November, and January it indicates "no school meeting". On these weeks there are conferences for parents and meeting the teachers' night, etc. We are asking principals not to schedule a staff meeting on the same week of these afterschool and evening conferences.

The CIA schedule for the 4 meetings will be as follows:

High Schools 2:45-4:15 p.m.

Elementary Schools dismissing at 2:00, 2:05, & 2:50 p.m. will attend CIA's from 3:15-4:45 p.m.

Elementary Schools dismissing at 3:30 p.m. will attend CIA's from 3:50-5:20 p.m.

Applicability of the Code of Professional Responsibility for Teachers to Candidates in a Connecticut Educator Preparation Program

Effective July 1, 2003, Section 10-145d-11 of the Regulations of Connecticut State Agencies, Standards and Procedures for the Approval of Connecticut Educator Preparation Programs, requires that institutions and schools of education ensure that prospective teacher candidates meet the following competencies when admitting, preparing and recommending for certification:

- Demonstrate knowledge of the Code of Professional Responsibility for Teachers;
- Demonstrate current Connecticut licensure competencies as defined in Sections 10-145d-400 through 10-145d-619, inclusive, of the Regulations of Connecticut State Agencies, the Common Core of Teaching, and the Connecticut Content Specific Standards for Teachers; and
- Have the qualities of character and personal fitness for teaching.

Standards and Procedures for the Approval of Connecticut Educator Preparation Programs stipulate requirements for candidates in addition to those noted above. Furthermore, in order to gain Connecticut State Board of Education Approval for their preparation programs, institutions and schools of education must present evidence of how their programs and candidates meet standards established by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education (NCATE).

Connecticut Code of Professional Responsibility

For Teachers

Regulations of Connecticut State Agencies
Section 10-145d-400a

PREAMBLE

Subsection (a)

The Code of Professional Responsibility for Teachers is a set of principles which the teaching profession expects its members to honor and follow. These principles set forth, on behalf of the teaching profession and the public it serves, standards to guide conduct and the judicious appraisal of conduct in situations that have professional and ethical implications. The Code adheres to the fundamental belief that the student is the foremost reason for the existence of the profession.

The teaching profession is vested by the public with a trust and responsibility requiring the highest ideals of professionalism. Therefore, the teacher accepts both the public trust and the responsibilities to practice the profession according to the highest possible degree of ethical conduct and standards. Such responsibilities include the commitment to the students, the teaching profession, and the community.

Consistent with applicable law, the Code of Professional Responsibility for Teachers shall serve as a basis for decisions on issues pertaining to licensure and employment. It shall apply to all teachers licensed by or individuals seeking licensure from the State of Connecticut. For the purposes of this section, "teacher" means a person who is applying for, who holds or who is employed under a teaching certificate, or other equivalent certificate, issued by the state board of education.

Helpful things to bring with you to a TEVAL conference

- Lesson or Unit plans, with reflections if available.
- Pre-tests/post-tests.
- Data from pre-tests/post-tests, including increases/decreases by student. Itemized analysis is helpful as well.
- Have already filled out your conference form on TalentEd. You don't have to submit it, but it is helpful to have it available to review with your IM.
- Examples of tests, activities, projects you have given so far.
- Work samples.
  - While we always want to include exemplary work, it is also important to include work where requirements were not fully met and be prepared to discuss how you provided feedback to the student or class regarding those concerns.
  - Including any alternative assessments is highly encouraged!

- After the grades are stored, teachers have up to 30 days after the end of the marking period to have the grades restored by the administrators.
- If you go back into a marking period that has been already stored and make changes you must contact the person in charge of grade changes to have the district restore your grades
- The grades do not automatically update historical grades when you change the grades in your gradebook

⚠ 2 Out-of-Sync - Teacher Gradebook and Transcript/Historical Grades

- You can tell if your grades are not matching stored grades if you get an Out-of-Sync gradebook error

|   | Section Num | Course Title | Expression      | Student Num | Student   | Grade | M1                |

11/02/2015 11

- Click on the error and it will show you which students have the error
- It shows you the stored grade and what is currently in the gradebook for the out-of-sync marking period
- You must either change the grade in your gradebook to match the stored grade or have your clerk, school counselor, or administrator ask to have your grades restored

- If you change a grade after the 30 days you must do a grade change form.
- You and your administrator must sign this form before you give it to the Historical Grade Changer in your building.

DCF CHILD ABUSE AND NEGLECT CARELINE: 1-800-842-2288

STATUTORY REFERENCES: C.G.S.17a-28, §17a-101 et seq.; §46b-120

DEFINITIONS OF ABUSE AND NEGLECT

Abused Child: Any child who has a non-accidental physical injury, or injuries which are at variance with the history given of such injuries, or is in a condition which is the result of maltreatment such as, but not limited to, malnutrition, sexual molestation, deprivation of necessities, emotional maltreatment or cruel punishment.

Neglected Child: Any child who has been abandoned or is being denied proper care and attention, physically, educationally, emotionally, or morally or is being permitted to live under conditions, circumstances or associations injurious to his or her well-being.

Exception: The treatment of any child by an accredited Christian Science practitioner shall not by itself constitute neglect or maltreatment.

CHILD UNDER AGE 13 WITH VENEREAL DISEASE: A physician or facility must report to Careline upon the consultation, examination or treatment for venereal disease of any child who has not reached his or her 13th birthday.

DO PRIVATE CITIZENS HAVE A RESPONSIBILITY FOR REPORTING?

Yes. Any person having reasonable cause to suspect or believe that any child under the age of 18 is in danger of being abused or has been abused or neglected may cause a written or oral report to be made to the Careline or a law enforcement agency. Any person making the report in good faith is immune from any liability, civil or criminal. However, the person is subject to the penalty for making a false claim.

WHAT IS THE AUTHORITY AND RESPONSIBILITY OF THE DEPARTMENT OF CHILDREN AND FAMILIES (DCF)?

All child protective services in Connecticut are the responsibility of the Department of Children and Families.

Upon the receipt of a report of child abuse or neglect, the Careline shall cause the report to be classified, evaluated immediately and forwarded to the appropriate Area Office for the commencement of an investigation or for the provision of services within timelines specified by statute and policy.

If an investigation produces evidence of child abuse or neglect, DCF shall take such measures as it deems necessary to protect the child, and any other children similarly situated, including, but not limited to, immediate notification to the appropriate law enforcement agency, and the removal of the child from his or her home with or without the parents' consent consistent with state law.

If DCF has probable cause to believe that the child or any other child in the household is at imminent risk of physical harm from the surroundings, and that immediate removal from such surroundings is necessary to ensure the child's safety, the Commissioner or designee shall authorize any employee of DCF or any law enforcement officer to remove the child and any other child similarly situated from such surroundings without the consent of the child's parent or guardian. The removal of a child shall not exceed 96 hours. If the child is not returned home within such 96-hour period, with or without protective services, DCF shall file a motion for temporary custody with the Superior Court for Juvenile Matters.

WHAT MEANS ARE AVAILABLE FOR REMOVING A CHILD FROM HIS OR HER HOME?

- 96-Hour hold by the Commissioner of DCF or designee (see above).
- 96-Hour hold by a physician – Any physician examining a child with respect to whom abuse or neglect is suspected shall have the right to keep such child in the custody of a hospital for no longer than 96 hours in order to perform diagnostic tests and procedures necessary to the detection of child abuse or neglect and to provide necessary medical care with or without the consent of such child's parents or guardian or other person responsible for the child's care, provided the physician has made reasonable attempts to (1) advise such child's parents or guardian or other person responsible for the child's care that the physician suspects the child has been abused or neglected, and (2) obtain consent of such child's parents or guardian or other person responsible for the child's care. In addition, such physician may take or cause to be taken photographs of the area of trauma visible on a child who is the subject of such report without the consent of such child's parent's or guardian or other person responsible for the child's care. All such photographs or copies thereof shall be sent to the local police department and the Department of Children and Families.

Profile of a Student Activity

Developed by Gene Thompson-Grove.

- Read the student profiles and identify the student that most accurately describes who you were as a student in high school. If several fit (this will be true for many of you), choose the one that affected you the most, or the one that now seems most significant as you look back at your high school experience. (5 minutes)
- Without using the number of the student profile, ask your colleagues questions and find the people who chose the same profile you did. (5 minutes)

Directions for Small Groups

1. Choose a facilitator/timer and a recorder/reporter.
2. Check to see if you really are all the same student. Then, talk about your school experiences together. What was it like to be this kind of student? Each person in the group should have an opportunity to talk, uninterrupted, for 2 minutes. (about 10 minutes)
3. Next, each person in the group privately identifies an actual student, by name, who fits the group's profile. Write [in your journal]. (about 5 minutes)
  - What have I done with this student?
  - What's worked? What hasn't?
  - What else could I do?
4. Talk as a group about what people need to know about students like you if they want you to learn at high levels and do meaningful work. List on newsprint: (about 15 minutes)
  - Things others need to know about students like you, and
  - Strategies that work to give students like you opportunities to learn at high levels and to do meaningful work.

Recorder/reporter should write on the newsprint, and should be ready to report out succinctly to the large group. Be sure to put your Student Profile # at the top of the newsprint page.

5. Whole group debriefing (after hearing from each Student Profile group):
What strikes you as you listen to the needs of these students?
Listen for the silences. Where are they, and what do you make of them?
